Don't pass up the 2013 vintage Brut and Brut Rosé from Rotari just because you might not be celebrating a special occasion. Sparkling wines are extremely food-friendly and food-flexible. The Brut, while being a Blanc de Blancs (100% chardonnay), offers the perfect balance of toast, creaminess, and ripe apple and citrus fruit; and is capable of handling anything from Chef George's Crispy Eggplant Stuzzichini to the spicy Filet Mignon Pepe Nero.

French Chardonnays, like the 2015 Saint-Véran from Drouhin, are typically more refined and food-friendly than their New World cousins. As opposed to the buttery creaminess and tropical fruit of a California Chardonnay, you can expect more tree fruit, think apples and pears, coupled with minerality and a refreshing acidity – perfect for the Sweet Potato Gnocchi with Scallops.

The 2014 "Perbacco" from Vietti offers the perfume and power of a Barolo without the price tag. Made from grapes that are sourced from parcels all planted in the Barolo region, the winemaker calls it a "baby Barolo". Barolos from the same producer cost four times as much...hello baby!

SUPER TUSCANS

- 609 TOSCANO ROSSO, SAN FELICE "PEROLLA" (TOSCANA) 2014
- 554 CABERNET SAUVIGNON/MERLOT, CASALI DI BIBBIANO "ARGANTE" (TOSCANA) 2010
- 522 LE SUGHERE DI FRASSINELLO, ROCCA DI FRASSINELLO (TOSCANA) 2013
- 552 LUPICAIA, CASTELLO DEL TERRICCIO (TOSCANA) 2004

Born from rebellion, Super Tuscan offer an easy segue from big New World reds to Italian red wine. In the 1970's some Tuscan producers came to believe that the legal rules governing the production of Chianti were too restrictive. They began to blend non-traditional grapes such as Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, and Syrah with Sangiovese and coined the term "Super Tuscan" to distinguish their wines from the inexpensive, low-quality wines that were associated with the term vino da tavola, or "table wine," that they were forced to put on the label.

Hint- the 2010 "Argante" from Casali di Bibbiano is a blockbuster.

If you try to find the exact blend on the always-fantastic Pleiades from Sean Thackrey (Bin 547), you might find yourself gazing up at the heavens for an answer, since you won't get one from the winemaker. From "one of California's most iconic and mystical winemakers," says Robert Parker: "Sean Thackrey has logged in 20 or more vintages of consistently stunning wines."

SPAIN

- 534 TEMPRANILLO, CUNE "RESERVA" (RIOJA) 2013
- 542 TEMPRANILLO, VIÑA SASTRE "CRIANZA" (RIBERA DEL DUERO) 2012

2013 was a difficult vintage in Rioja. Wines can be judged by the raw materials- grapes, vines, terroir, weather, and wines can be judged by the vintner and their talents. Taste the "Reserva" 2013 from Cune to see what difference a brilliant winemaker can make to a less desirable vintage.
